WELL-BEING

ITALY

CROATIA

CENTRO STORICO RIVOLI

First day in Milan

We spent the first day traveling. We flew from Zagreb to Milan and landed in the evening. We checked into the hotel and the next day went sightseeing in Milan.

In Milan we visited The Galleria Vittorio Emanuele II and La Scala Opera.

La Scala in Milan is the most famous opera house in the world. In addition to being extremely well-known, it has incredible acoustics and a long history. The opera house is large, beautiful, and elegant.

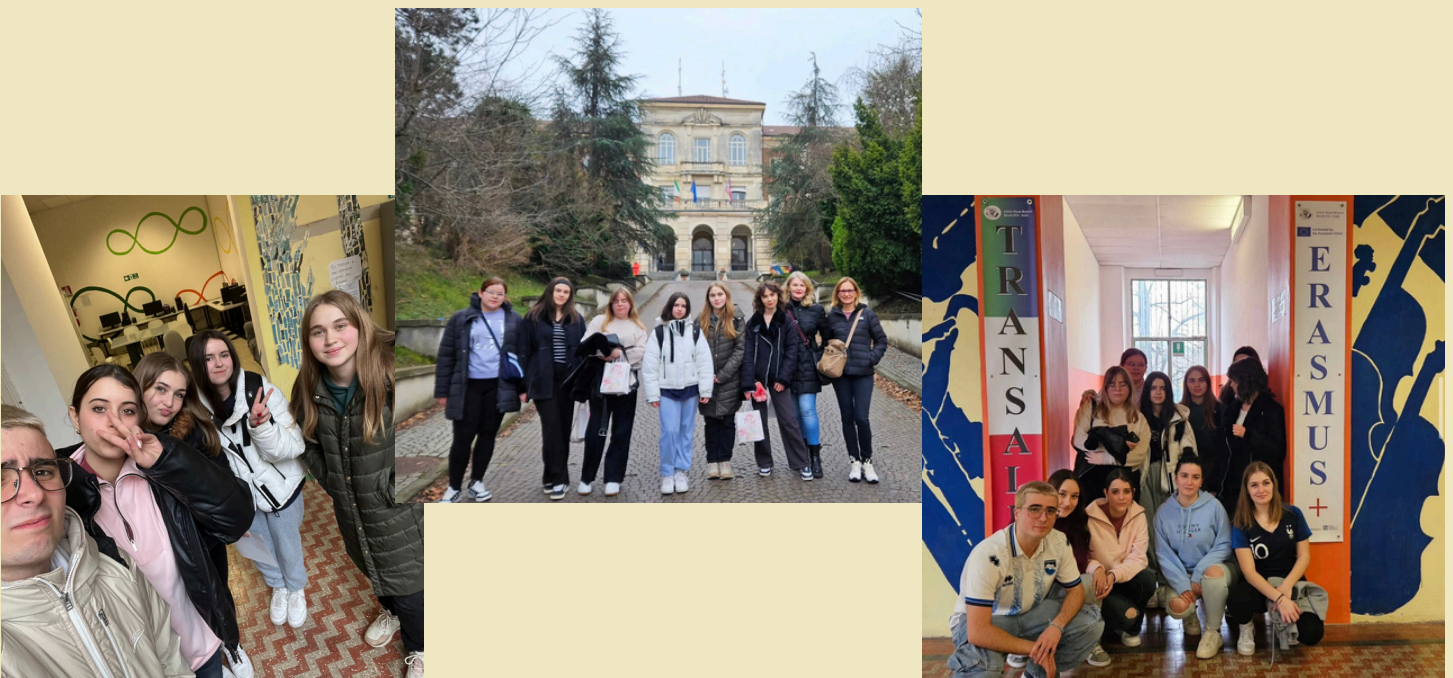

After that, we visited the Duomo di Milano cathedral. From the outside, the cathedral is beautiful and unique, and we had the chance to go inside as well. The architecture of the cathedral is incredibly detailed, with stunning stained glass windows and other Gothic features.

Oscar Romero school

We spent the second day of mobility at the Oscar Romero school. The school is located in Rivoli, near Castell di Rivoli. The students and teachers of the school welcomed us. We quickly got to know each other and became friends with them.

After getting to know each other, the students showed us around the school, and together we noticed the differences between their school and ours. We then spent the rest of the time getting to know each other better, and it soon felt like we had known each other for a long time. We laughed and had fun together.

Activities and workshops

Icebreaking activities

We had icebreaking activities by introducing ourselves and sharing something about ourselves, such as our hobbies. We also talked about our city and school, while the students from Oscar Romero school introduced us to Rivoli, Torino, and their school.

Student presentation

The students of the tourism program presented the cultural and historical heritage of Torino and Rivoli to us. They gave the presentation in English, Spanish, and Italian. Together with them, we compared the similarities and differences in the education system.

Subtitle workshop

In this activity, together with the Italian students, we learned how to add subtitles to a video they prepared. We translated the English subtitles into Croatian, had a great time, and learned something new.

Inclusion in Italy

Alice in Wonderland

The first part of the workshop was dedicated to the school project "Alice in Wonderland." As part of this project, literary works serve as the basis for activities in which students with special needs are included, and all of this takes place in regular classes. The students of the school presented their presentations and introduced us to the project. It was nice to see how students with special needs are involved in various activities.

Sport and Inclusion

The second part of the workshop, "Sport and Inclusion," consisted of a presentation and an animated video by Pietro Mazzei. Pietro helped us understand the importance of sports in the lives of people with disabilities and shared his own story of how sports have helped him in his life.

The Inclusion Tree

The third part of the activity was "The Inclusion Tree." In this workshop, we wrote words related to inclusion in Croatian, English, and Italian. We used the words we wrote to create the tree's canopy, and it became a beautiful memory in the school. We all signed it, and we had a lot of fun during its creation.

Goodbye party

After these two beautiful days spent at the Oscar Romero school, our time there came to an end. The students and teachers prepared gifts for us and threw a goodbye party. We had a wonderful time, but we knew it was just the end of our stay at the school, not a final goodbye to them.

Castello di Rivoli

After school, we headed to the Rivoli Museum of Modern Art with the Italians. The museum is very close to the school, so we had already seen it from the outside over the past two days, but now it was time for the tour. The museum itself is quite different, and the exhibits are unique and interesting. After the tour, we returned to Torino, where we were staying, and that was the end of our visit to Rivoli.

Torino

The last day of our mobility was spent in Torino. We had been staying in the city for the past few days but hadn't had the chance to explore it until now. The Italians were our guides and showed us around the city. We visited the San Carlo and Castello squares, the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist where the Shroud of Turin is kept, the market, and many other landmarks.

We also visited the Mole Antonelliana, the symbol of Torino. Inside, there is a cinema museum, which was very interesting. After the museum, we took the elevator to the top and enjoyed the stunning view of the city.

In Torino, there is the second most famous Egyptian museum in the world, which we also visited. It was very interesting to explore the collection of artifacts there.

After the tour, we were presented with certificates, and the moment of farewell had arrived. We thanked them for everything and, with heavy hearts, said our goodbyes.

Venice

Before returning home, we visited Venice. Venice is a unique city built on water, famous for its canals, bridges, and St. Mark's Square. The city has a rich history and culture, and walking through its winding streets reveals new surprises. Like everything else so far, Venice was another beautiful experience and a memory for a lifetime.
